Definitions

CHEATING: The use of notes, documents or answers During test, or the copying of one student's completed Assignments or answers by another; allowing another to do the same, or having access to information such as formulas or calculations.

Giving or receiving limited help in troubleshooting a part of an assignment is not normally considered cheating. However, allowing another student to write any part of an assignment, copying another's file, or assignment, and excessive collaboration on assignments, are all considered cheating. Unless specifically approved by the teacher, the student providing such assistance is considered to be cheating as well. Never allow another student to look at your assignment nor to borrow your electronic file.

PLAGIARISM: The use of another's words ideas, or creative productions without assigning credit to the original source.

To plagiarize is to take ideas or words of another person and pass them off as ones own. In short, it is stealing something intangible rather than an object. Obviously, it is not necessary to state the source of well known or easily verifiable facts. But students are expected to acknowledge the sources of ideas and expressions they use in their written work, whether those expressions are quoted directly or paraphrased. To provide adequate documentation is not only an indication of academic honesty, but also a courtesy which enables the reader to consult your sources with ease. Failure to do so constitutes plagiarism.

It is also considered plagiarism and/or cheating if a student submits a paper written in whole or in part by someone other than himself or herself, or copies the answer or answers of another student in any test, examination or take-home assignment.

ACADEMIC HONESTY POLICY

Students are expected to demonstrate honesty and integrity while in attendance at University High School. Each student is expected to do his or her own work. This includes test taking, homework, class assignments, and the creation of original essays, compositions, term papers, and scientific research. If submitted work is not a true Reflection of a student's own effort and ability, then the student has manifested unacceptable academic behavior.

Any behavior which can be defined as cheating represents a violation of mutual trust and respect essential to education at University High School. (Academic Honesty Policy. B.P. 6010) (SEE FULL POLICY ON PREVIOUS PAGE)
